 There is no parking in the center, please use the public transport.

To get to KIITO on the first day, use a taxi or the bus No.29 from Sannomiya Station.

Bus

The bus stop near the hall is “Creative Design Center” or “zeikan-mae”. And you can also walk to KIITO from Sannomiya station. It is a very simple, 20 minute walk. Go south towards the sea, along the street named “The Flower Road”, across the Highway 2nd, and you can see KIITO on the left hand side.

Taxi

When you take taxi to KIITO, you can say that “Kobe zeikan-mae, please”. “Kobe zeikan” means Kobe customs, which all taxi drivers will know. KIITO is in front of it

Kobe Customs (“mae” means “in front of”). KIITO is not known as well, because it is newly opened.

Tokyo Airports:

Kansai International Airport

Osaka International Airport (Itami)

How to get to Sannomiya Train Station:

- From the airports (both Kansai Airport and Osaka Airport), take an airport shuttle bus to Sannomiya. Shuttle buses go straight to Sannomiya and are not as expensive.

Coming from Tokyo:

- From Tokyo to Kobe, it is recommended to take Shinkansen (the bullet train), because it is very punctual and safe. Between Shin-Kobe Station and Sannomiya Station is 2 minutes by subway.
- However, if you come to Japan through Haneda Airport, you can fly to Kobe Airport. From Kobe airport to Sannomiya Station is about 20 minutes by train named “the Port Liner”.
- Nozomi trains require about 160 minutes to reach Shin-Kobe Station from Tokyo, while direct Hikari trains require roughly 195 minutes.
- The regular one way fare from Tokyo to Shin-Kobe is 13,760 yen by non-reserved seat on any train, around 14,300 yen by reserved seat on Hikari trains and around 14,700 yen by reserved seat on a Nozomi train. The Japan Rail Pass is valid on Hikari trains, but not on Nozomi trains.
